Atelier "Teyan day"

The public atelier performance was held.

May 2, 2013, The atelier was held by The Drama club "Sabotenza" of Kinki University. The title is "Teyan day!" This spring performance is annual freshman welcome performance. Hall was filled with audiences before performance start and Audience stood on both sides of the aisle. Moderator got off the stage and all actors appeared with rhythmical Music and colorful illumination effect.

The actors gave heated performance in front of Audience. Especially, Only

Body movements and facial expressions in Space of limited are ranmimu. That is feeling so windy. The audience was staring to as sucked into the drama that unfolds story full of a sense of reality in front of their eyes.

The story is "Garbage fox help the girl that was kidnapped". It is simple story. Scene were being deployed evil organization and police appeared one after another. The actors made audience enjoyed with tears and laughter until the end. Audience enjoyed all the time because of great staging.

Illumination was changed as scenes of drama and that set the mood for every scene. Along with that, powerful sound also made audience happy, sad, and scary. Tools that used in drama were looking more like real things. Costume of actors was subtle and well-made as you can image historical backdrop easily. And there also was funny costume that made audience laugh. The drama was great success because of background work. This year they changed atmosphere of drama as unusual.

Kano Mikiya(19) who

Soccer

A soccer game between Kinki University and the University of Marketing and Distribution Sciences was played.

On April 28th, a soccer game between Kinki University and the University of Marketing and Distribution Sciences was played at the field on the E campus of Kinki University. Because the weather was fine, many spectators gathered to watch this game.

The players had been warming up before the game started. The game started at 1:00 p.m. Ten minutes later, Kinki University scored first with a header. Thereafter, Kinki University scored second and third with a shot from good coordination, and Kinki University defended a violent attack from the University of Marketing and Distribution Sciences. The intense game had spectators shouting for joy. At 1:50 p.m., the first half of the game finished with a score of three to zero. As soon as the last half began, Kinki University was about to lose a point; however, Kinki University saved a completion and waited for an opportunity to counterattack. In the middle of the last half, Kinki University scored on a free kick. Moreover, Kinki University added more points afterwards. Kinki University continued their aggressive stance

KANSAI STUDENT BASEBALL SPRING LEAGUE

Kinki University Baseball Club took a step toward Meiji Jingu stadium because of winning this game.

On May 11th, the Kansai Student Baseball Spring League was held at Koshien Baseball Stadium. The Kinki University Baseball Club faced Ritsumeikan University.

The game began with

Kinki University Baseball Club batting first. There were cloudy skies and it seemed as if it would rain at any moment. The players played baseball as hard as they could for the championship. Kinki University’s players succeeded in making steals many times; however, scoring runs was far from easy. Both Kinki University and Ritsumeikan University fought a fierce battle with no runs until the bottom of the eighth inning. The first runner of Kinki University got to second base in top of the ninth inning. Next, the second runner hit a grounder. Because of this, the first runner was able to advance to third base, and home plate came into his sights. The third runner hit a bunt, and the first runner came in to home plate and scored. At that moment, the spectators gave a shout of joy and clapped their hands. The player who scored the run gave a high five to the other players and shared his joy. In the bottom of the ninth inning, they defended the attack from Ritsumeikan University and won the game by a score of 1-0.

Kenjiro Hashimoto, the captain of the Kinki University Baseball Club and also a catcher, said, “It was good that we could decide the victory on a bunt that we had practiced all the time before Spring League began. The championship of the Kansai Student Baseball Spring League was near at hand, however we didn’t feel much pressure. We want to play baseball as hard as possible with the aim of playing baseball at Meiji Jingu Stadium.”

If they win the championship of this league, they can play at Meiji Jingu Stadium, the goal of every university student. They took a step toward the championship because they won this game. We want to keep our eyes on Kinki University Baseball Club as they make remarkable progress toward Meiji Jingu Stadium. (by K.Maehira)

On April 12, the Jugglery Lover’s Society sponsored the “New Student Welcome Magic Show” was held in the Club Center. The “New Student Welcome Magic Show” is held every year. This year was the 50th anniversary of this show. Thirty minutes before the show started, the seats were full of new students.

First, a magic trick was performed in which a number of flags were increased and decreased. Next, there was a trick in which a small watch was turned into a big watch. The magician took a pause and then audience gave him a big hand. Of all the magic tricks the one that were the most exciting came at the end. These were Japanese-style magic tricks in which a flaming stick was changed into a Japanese-style umbrella and confetti, and a cherry branch dropped all its petals at once then turned into a huge fan and Japanese-style umbrella. The audience admired the magic show that developed rapidly before their eyes in five minutes. After the magic show, the Jugglery Lover’s Society staff taught magic to new students. They explained the tricks to students and then let them practice. This year the magic show was improved from last year with the addition of new skills.

Hiraoka Katsuki representative of the Jugglery Lover’s Society said “The magic show didn’t tire the audience and got a good reaction from them with cheers and applause. We were able to hold their interest until the show was over and we taught the new students magic tricks. Because of this magic show, I hope the number of people who have become interested in magic has increased.” (by S.Fukuoka)

A student connects a city to rural areas

Vigor is regained in rural areas by a student's power.

In recent years, the reduction in the population of rural areas is intense and the low birthrate and ageing have not been slowed. As the way things stand, there are some areas that may disappear in the near future. Now various kinds of activities exist on campus, including those related to the environment, international exchange, education, and culture. Among these, there is also an activity in which students can connect urban and rural areas and help to revitalize regional areas.

Masaaki Goto, student association representative of a group that is working on revitalization projects in Shimane Prefecture, said, “I am informing people about the local charm by using IT technology, and I hope that this can contribute to revitalization of the area.” Moreover, the group not only supports farmers and fishermen in depopulated areas, but it also introduces students in Osaka to the problem. They cooperate in activities such as the sale of products from the district, a “café,” a “direct-delivery-from-the-farm-to-the-city service,” “tour planning,” and “village revitalization.” With other students in the Kansai area, they participate in these activities with the purpose of developing “primary industry,” and with the “goal of college student's growth” without receiving any special support. Many things can be carried out because they are a student association.

The feature of such activities is to respect each student's free way of thinking. There is no formal manual; both sides consider what is to be done on the spot, and the city person wishes to make the local people happy, thus a trial-and-error method is applied. Students can also develop communication skills by talking with people. It will become a very good opportunity through their activities for students to talk with those who have various views, especially those who live so far away. A student can be a bridge that connects people and connects rural and urban areas.

In recent years, because of these activities, there are young people who want to return to their hometowns and help to revitalize those areas and bring excitement to the towns in which they were raised. Participating in student organizations will help to significantly develop oneself. It is a good idea to participate in activities that allow you to interact with other people now while you can do so.

surplus intake of sugar

Many people eat snacks after they become tired from working or playing sports. A fatigued body consumes a lot of energy, so the blood sugar level falls markedly. The drop in one's sugar level brings a decline in thinking power, concentration and physical strength, because the body can't supply energy efficiently. So we desire to eat snacks to recover quickly from this condition. However, it isn't good to consume sugars. The pancreas breaks down sugars for the function of secreting insulin. If you take in a lot of sugar, your pancreas works above what is necessary. When too much sugar is broken down, our bodies have low blood sugar. A surplus intake of sugar brings about sleepiness, fatigue and a fall in concentration.

How do we suppress the surplus intake of sugar? First, we should check ingredients contained in food when we buy something. Most ingredients are shown. Second, we should know the amount of sugar in food. Finally, we should try eating fruit, because fruit is better than snacks. Fruit has much dietary fiber so we feel full after eating just a little. As a result, it is difficult to eat more sugar than is necessary.

There are a lot of snacks in convenience stores and supermarkets, so we can buy these easily.

We should learn how to cut down on our intake of sugar and pay attention to amount of sugar contained in food.

Juvenile literature

Juvenile literature can enjoy not only the children but also the adults.

We can find children’s books in familiar places. For example, we can borrow them from the library, see them in the waiting room of a hospital, and so on. So we have many opportunities to come in contact with children books, and they are easy for us to get our hands on. Not only children but also adults can enjoy these works. There are various kinds, as well, such as picture books, biographies, and poetry. The reader can notice profound themes by reading children’s books again when he or she has become an adult. Juvenile literature has developed by forming child readers through the development of print technology and the spread of education. Moreover, it has developed since “children” were recognized as one personality type in humans. In particular, Andersen’s fairy tales have been translated and loved in all countries around the world. “The Naked King” is one work that has become an idiomatic expression in Japanese. In addition, children’s books are frequently made into animated cartoons or made into movies with the development of media. That juvenile literature attaches greater importance on education rather than entertainment is demonstrated by parents who read to their children.

In a broad sense picture books are also one genre of juvenile literature. Picture books are not only to be enjoyed by one person alone. They are media that can be enjoyed because someone reads to someone else. In short, the reader can enjoy listening to the words with their ears while looking at the pictures. Moreover, the readers and the listeners can enjoy this activity together. On occasions such as this, picture books have some unique features. The reader can make changes in the speed of turning the pages and can change the rhythm of the story as he or she tells it. Yasuko

Doi of the International Juvenile Literature Hall at the Osaka Prefectural Central Library has this message for children, “I hope you will be able to find a book that you will think dearly of when you are an adult and want to read throughout your lifetime.” Much juvenile literature includes philosophical thought. Moreover, picture books aren’t lacking in artistic value. Readers can enjoy these books with the eyes of an adult. Moreover, they can learn about the sensitivity of children by enjoying these books with children. Furthermore, they can find their inner child once again by reading these books. The ways of enjoying children’s literature has the possibility to increase. From now on juvenile literature works will include various new effects and illustrations. Juvenile literature will be loved by children and will remain in people’s minds as a fond memory.

Dieting

Summer has come, and more and more people are lightly dressed. Many people will go on a diet in preparation for summer vacation. However, losing weight is not always a good thing.

Nowadays, many young people try to get thinner than the appropriate weight. In Japan, many people get much thinner and are diagnosed as being in a starvation state. Some people say that Japanese women think about dieting too much. Immoderate dieting is bad for our health. Unbalanced eating habits by misguided dieting increase the risk of malnutrition which can lead to conditions such as a lack of iron. The symptoms of a lack of iron are fatigue and growth disorders. Moreover, if our desire to decrease our weight becomes too strong, we develop the obsession that we must reduce our weight, and there is a chance of developing an eating disorder.

Why do Japanese women want to more lose weight than is normal? The first reason is the existence of fashion models. They admire girls on TV and in magazines, and want to have the same proportions as those girls. Therefore, they diet too much. The second reason is that TV and the Internet broadcast much information about dieting, and so and dieting becomes a part of their lives. Therefore, they go on a diet even though they are not fat.

Normally, dieting is meant for overweight people to achieve a healthy body type. Overweight people need to exercise in moderation, have nutritionally well-balanced meals, and moderate their intake of fat and sugar. Dieting should never include things like eating unbalanced meals or taking medicine. BMI is one thing that is used to measure whether you are overweight or not. First, we should confirm whether our weight is normal or not by using BMI. Next, we should reflect on our meals and lifestyle and take care not to stray far from the ideal body weight.
